BUSINESS MEN HEAR TALK ON VALUE OF GOOD ROADS

Wetaskiwin Section of Edmonton Good Roads Association
Off to Good Start. Banquet Given by Wetaskiwin
Business Men's Association Addressed by Mr. R. A.
Parrish. Large Number Apply for Membership.

The monthly dinner of the Wetaskiwin Business Men's Association, which took place at the Hotel Windsor on Friday evening, October 28th, was a most enjoyable affair, but the attendance was very disappointing. After the action of the executive committee in inviting an outside speaker to be present and Mr. Smith having gone to the trouble and expense of providing a special dinner for the occasion, it was certainly to be expected that the members of the Association at least would have turned out in force. That they did not do so does not speak well of the public spirit or enterprise of the citizens of Wetaskiwin and was not calculated to leave a very favorable impression of the city with the guests of the evening. There undoubtedly would have been more farmers present had it not been for several counter attractions in the country on the same evening and it is to be hoped that the next dinner of the association will see a better attendance both from the city and district.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. R. A. Parrish, secretary of the Edmonton Automobile and Good Roads Association, who gave a very interesting talk on the work and objects of that organization. The Edmonton Automobile and Good Roads Association had been formed for the purpose of improving and extending the roads, and especially the main highways, in the northern and central parts of the province. It was only through cooperation that anything could be accomplished along these lines. The association was composed of a central organization and several district organizations, one in each county or section throughout the country, and instead of one district pulling another way all their efforts could work harmoniously through the central organization and thus results would be obtained. As an example of the value of cooperation, Mr. Parrish referred to southern Alberta, which, he stated, through organization, was able to get almost anything it asked for from the government. It was high time that the people of northern Alberta got together and got their share of the appropriation.

The principal project which the association now had in hand was the Jasper Highway, extending west from Edmonton to Jasper Park. For this highway it was proposed to utilize the abandoned C.N. grade west of Edmonton. This grade had been constructed at a cost of approximately eight million dollars. The rails had been torn up and shipped overseas and unless some work could now be made of the grade the considerable loss in SASKATCHEWAN THROUGH RAINS

While travelling through the province of Saskatchewan, and in conversation with many of the newspaper publishers of that province, the editor of The Times learned that there was considerable loss through the fact that there was much grain in the fields yet unthreshed because of the heavy rains which had visited Southern Saskatchewan and created growth, while the wheat and oats were still in the sheath.

The low price of wheat is also discouraging to the farmers. One farmer is reported to have had $300 bushels of wheat, which he sold for around a dollar a bushel. The final outcome was that the farmer had for his work and worry just enough to provide for next year. The city of Saskatoon to look up a job in the lumber camps to keep things going for the winter.

Through the province it was evident that fall plowing was well under way, and preparations were advanced to sow a large acreage next year.

country would derive no benefit from this enormous outlay. The roads were overhauled with about twenty inches of gravel and all that was necessary to remove the ties and run road scrapers over it. In fact this had now been accomplished for almost half the distance to Jasper Park, and at a cost of only about $60,000, to the provincial government. It could be completed. The Federal government would then continue the road through the Park and the D.C. government was ready to take up the line in the west, the line being about thirty-six miles of new road was required to do this, and we would then have a road from the coast of the event. Mr. Parrish informed his audience that the completion of this whole project was now practically assured.

Having carried the Jasper Highway project to a successful conclusion, the association would then take up the matter of the road to the "Peace River country," also a highway to Saskatoon and east to Winnipeg, and the improvement of the Calgary and Edmonton road, as well as feeders to the main highways. The main line of the road would be obtained by diverting the automobile tourist traffic from the main highways to the side roads. The association had decided to hold a parade of veterans and militia units on November 7.

Several prominent officers of the Great War, interviewed by a Herald representative on Friday expressed approval of the war veterans' decision not to celebrate the armistice on November 7. Instead of one of them they would view the situation in an entirely different light. This day would be a good deal to the veterans, they declared, and the attitude which they have taken is quite natural.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Parrish invited those present to form a local section of the association. The annual fee for membership was $5.00, and the fee paid now would entitle to membership until March 1, 1922. A membership of twenty would give the section a representative on the executive committee.

The response to his invitation was very enthusiastic, all those present having applied for membership. Mr. C. Smith was appointed secretary pro tem, and a meeting will be called shortly to complete the organization of the local unit.

MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL
SEEMS TO BE ASSURED

A Municipal Hospital for Wetaskiwin seems to be assured. The councils of Millet, Wetaskiwin, and the Municipal District of Monaghan, have passed resolutions recommending that a hospital be built in the town. It is well understood that the council are in favor of it, and that it will be passed at their regular meeting this month. Just as soon as the resolutions are passed, the government is ready to send speakers to explain the vote. It would be well if the vote could be taken at the same time as that for the municipal elections, and thus save the expense of an additional meeting. Wetaskiwin District, one just such a hospital as Red Deer, Provost, Camrose, and other towns are building. Camrose voted on December 12th.

TWO COLORFUL MEN AT PONOKA HAVE ESCAPED

Information received the local headquarters of the Alberta Provincial Police on Monday night that M. Paulson and William Woodley, two dangerous inmates of the Ponoka asylum, had escaped from that institution, at seven o'clock on Monday evening. Provincial and city police are keeping a sharp lookout for the fugitives, whose capture is expected shortly. These have been organized and a diligent search is in progress throughout the country.

Paulson is described as being forty-five years old, five feet six inches in height, weighing 140 lbs., having blue eyes, drooping moustache and dressed in grey colored penitentiary suit. He is said to have committed a serious crime in or near Edmonton in the year 1914.

William Woodley, the other fugitive, is described as being twenty-six years old, weighing 140 pounds, having brown hair, blue eyes, clean shaven and a tattoo on the left arm, and at the time of escape was wearing a blue suit and grey cap. This man is said to be a returned veteran.

VETERANS STICK TO CELEBRATION
ON NOVEMBER 11

In view of the resolution passed by the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans, to the effect that the veterans should take no official part in any armistice celebrations held on November 7, instead of the proper date, November 11, the Calgary Canadian Club has decided not to hold a parade of veterans and militia units on November 7.

Several prominent officers of the Great War, interviewed by a Herald representative on Friday expressed approval of the war veterans' decision not to celebrate the armistice on November 7. Instead of one of them they would view the situation in an entirely different light. This day would be a good deal to the veterans, they declared, and the attitude which they have taken is quite natural.

NO GRAIN CON-GESTION ON C.P.R.

Line Elevators to Assist in Preventing Blockade if Necessary

(Special to The Times)
Winnipeg, Nov. 7.—A meeting was held at the C.P.R. headquarters in Winnipeg on Friday evening last. During these three days eleven hundred such cars passed through the city. Practically all of them went on to Buffalo and points west, a very small percentage only coming north. These men in coming and returning by Calgary, saw only the air priorities of the south and returned home with a very erroneous impression of Alberta. If we could only direct a good portion of this traffic to the northern part of the province, the benefits to the country both in the way of transportation and the advertising we would get in the U.S. as well as eastern Canada, would be incalculable.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Parrish invited those present to form a local section of the association. The annual fee for membership was $5.00, and the fee paid now would entitle to membership until March 1, 1922. A membership of twenty would give the section a representative on the executive committee.

SOLDIERS' REUNION

A reunion of all soldiers in the Wetaskiwin district is to be held in the Parish Hall on Armistice Day, Friday, November 11th, at eight o'clock p.m., when a supper and program will be given to all ex-soldiers and veterans. All those who were in uniform, either in Canada, England or France, are welcome. Invitations have already been sent out to those whose names are known to the committee, and many have signified their intention to be present. Any one who has not received an invitation by mail or otherwise, are requested to be present, and to give notice if possible, beforehand, to T. C. Rubbra, of their intention to attend, so that enough men can be "inducted" for to fill the wants of all.

It is expected that a group of returned entertainers from Ponoka will be present, and they include a splendid band, light dancing and musical artists. A good program of local talent is also being arranged, and if possible the entire program will be presented in our next issue.

It is reported that a nono-cap that saw duty in France will be on hand to do its "bit".

INCREASES IN RURAL TELEPHONE RATES TO BE MADE SHORTLY

Increases in rural rates and rates for exchange on the government telephone lines in the province, are contemplated by the provincial telephone department, to an extent sufficient to provide a depreciation reserve fund for the system, which has not yet been provided for fully.

This announcement was contained in a statement issued to the Alberta on Friday by Vernon W. Smith, minister of railways and telephones in the Greenfield government. Coupled with this is the assurance that the increases will not be beyond the actual need of the debt, and that the service of the department and become more efficient, and the increase will be made in a statement issued to the Alberta on Friday by Vernon W. MINERS RESCUED
AFTER A WEEK
IN LIVING TOMB

BRITANNIA BRANCH, B.C., Oct. 25
—Two miners were rescued late last night from a shaft at the 2,300 foot level in the copper mines here, after nearly a week in their living tomb. The men, Francis Pateneau and L. P. Craig, were working in the narrow shaft last Thursday evening when a rockslide closed the mouth of the shaft.

A little food, a trickle of water and air from a tiny aperture near the top of the shaft kept the men alive until their workmates above day and night to remove the obstruction and they were freed. The last hauler was moved at midnight and rescue gangs entered the shaft.

Craig and Pateneau are in hospital and are reported to be doing nicely.

The Great Oil Boom

Mr. Potter had a pasture and a cow. He had other property of course, but this is all that concerns us just now.

The cow got the itch or something one summer, and was treated by a travelling veterinary surgeon whom Providence threw in Mr. Potter's way. The V.S. anointed the cow with a mixture of kerosene, turpentine and tar, and left for parts unknown.

As soon as his back was turned the cow licked off the kerosene and the other ingredients, and then went and drank up part of a slough to get the taste out of her mouth; at the same time leaving an oily senna on the surface of the slough.

A few days later Mr. Potter noticed the seam. It was shortly after the oil boom at Calgary, and Mr. Potter was pained for oil, you might say. He was spending hours to break the joyful news to his wife.

Stalking solemnly into the house, Mr. Potter said to his wife:

"I hope you will try to bear up my dear, under the strain of what I am about to tell you."

Mrs. Potter's head stopped beating, and she gazed at him for a moment. The last time he had said "my dear," was when the oil well had dried.

"Is it the children, Sir? One of them has—"

"No, nothing of the sort. Good news, I mean. The kind that's better to hear than the other kind."

"Well, you can't mean that you've found the white heat!"

"My goodness, woman! Do you think of them at a time like this? I have lost my mind!"

"Oh, is that all?"

"Ah! Ain't it enough? Do you realize the part that oil plays in the affairs of a nation. Coal oil, kerosene and liver oil—it doesn't matter what kind of oil it is, the man that strikes it has struck a fortune."

"And we've struck it, Martha—struck it rich—hundreds of it, tons of it, oceans of it! Right in our own pasture. Yesterday that pasture was nothing but a pasture. Today it's worth millions. I'll be able to develop that perpetual motion machine!"

Mrs. Potter's face had brightened at the recital went on, but it clouded again at the mention of the perpetual motion machine. She thought:

"What's the use? What he makes one way he loses another. He's already sunk enough money in that perpetual motion machine to keep us in comfort the rest of our days if we could. The experts say that perpetual motion is impossible, but that does not discourage him. He only says: 'Look at Columbus, what encouragement did he have? All the world against him, and he won out.' And he says it in a way that makes you believe that there is any such thing as perpetual motion, he's just one to be laughed at. I wonder what's given him this new start."

Aloud she said:

"How did you find the oil, Sir?"

"Stumbled on it. It always happens that way. Some of my greatest discoveries have come to me in that fashion. Edison says the same thing. He stumbled on his light bulb. But you, my inventors can't tell when an original idea is going to come plumping out of nowhere in particular and catch us in the other places. We just keep working away, and hoping for an idea, and when it does come along we're ready to grab it."

"I was just walking through the pasture this morning—brain perfectly at rest—don't know but what I was whistling—seems to me I was whistling—and all of a sudden, here it was—flashing on a slough."

"To a man of ordinary mind, even if he had observed it, it would have meant nothing. What is a little oil floating on a slough? But your keen scientific observer overlooks nothing, neglects nothing. The smallest detail may speak volumes to his trained senses. Even a scratch, even a pin-point, on the face of Nature has its significance."

"What did I do? Filled a bottle with that oily senna, and here it is. It goes forward to the Patent Office by express train today."

"The Patent Office?"

"Yes. They don't know anything about it all there, but they know me. That's what counts. Suppose I send this oil to the Department of Geology, where it properly belongs. It will be examined, they'll be confirmed. Fourth Assistant Clerk says to his assistant—"

"Who sent this oil?"

"Assistant doesn't know," asks his assistant. He doesn't know, but passes it on down the line. Finally the Fourth Assistant Sub-Assistant Office takes that oil and cleans his hands with it, and all the time I'm writing letters and tracers, and wiring and phoning, and hiring detectives to follow that oil through the department of Geology."

"But I send it to the Patent Office, where they know me—"

"And what they might, with all the correspondence they get from all over the world—where they know me, and what is the result? The Patent Office says to the Chief Clerk—"

"Where's this oil from?"

"Which? Oh that, Potter sent that—"

"Well, why don't you hunt up the information he wants and wire it to him? You ought to know enough to do that without being told. That is the kind of man that must not be kept waiting."

"The result is that I get my information within a week instead of having to wait goodness knows how long."

Mr. Potter's next step was to consult the banker; a young man who attended daily flowing fountains, button boots, and a high top hat.

The kind of young man who falls an easy prey to the practice of using the first initial and signing the second name in full. E. L. Lomax Smith was the signature of this kind of finance.

He warmed up to Mr. Potter's proposition at once.

"What we want," he said, "is a mortgage."

Mr. Potter agreed that a mortgage was the very thing. He had been trying to think of that word all along.

"What capital do we need?" Mr. Smith asked.

"I don't know. What do you think?"

"Why, I'm not particular. What do you think?"

"Say fifteen or sixteen million."

"Well, fifteen or sixteen million?"

"Very well, I'll make a note of it. Capital, fifteen million. Paid up capital—"

"That for the present."

"Whatever you like. You can't make it too high."

"Say a million."

"A million. Two millions. I tell you this is going to be a big thing. We will make that Standard Oil bunch hang themselves."

"Hump, well, I should say. In time we'll absorb them."

The whole affair was conducted about the same as the other lines. It took all afternoon, but it was worth it.

The next morning found Mr. Potter busy "setting stakes" for the oil wells.

He had plenty of stakes, so he set them out freely and profusely. The lower end of the pasture fairly bristled with stakes.

Then he imported a gang of surveyors from Winnipeg to lay out the rest of the pasture according to a diagram he had prepared: a diagram labelled "Perpetual Heights. A subdivision of the city of Dutton into blocks of four hundred feet, fronting on a paved street—streets that were bounded by the city limits."

He had plenty of money, and he was not afraid to spend it. He had plenty of money, and he was not afraid to spend it.

By this time Dutton was waking up. The news had spread, and real estate was climbing steadily. Every vacant lot in town was grabbed up by speculators—local speculators, or—of course—and every tract of vacant land was being snapped up by speculators.

A hurried meeting of the company was held, and after long and earnest consultation, it was decided to let the oil go ahead, as he decided to do, and make delivery in two instalments of one hundred feet each. The operations were resumed on that basis.

One morning it was noticed that the court had disappeared from the surface of the slough, and Mr. Potter ordered that drilling operations be suspended at once. The disappearance of the court was a serious matter, and Mr. Potter was determined to get it back.

They were drilling at the time in Vol. No. 2. Mr. Potter told a small crew to a string, watching it with rock, and make delivery in two instalments of one hundred feet each. The operations were resumed on that basis.

It came up brimming with water, clear cold water—not the slightest trace of oil in it.

For a while Mr. Potter looked puzzled. Then a great light burst forth upon his countenance. He said:

"Here, this is the most stupendous discovery of our age. It's a discovery that makes the laws of gravitation look pale and weak, and gives the conservation of energy away in the shade. It has remained for Nature to reveal her last and greatest secret—soluble oil."

"You have been taught, and perhaps you have believed, that oil and water don't mix. But now we have the proof that it is not so."

"Look at this can of ostensible water. You see it's a can of oil. There. Not the slightest. Yet it is there in abundance; but so subtly concealed, so perfectly blended, by the agency of Nature, that the most experienced eye can detect it."

Mr. Potter, overcome with emotion, burst into tears. He was weeping for Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum—a title suggested by Mr. Todd, the schoolmaster, in the crowd, gave him a letterhead with the name of Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum.

This discovery gave a fresh impetus to the speculation in oil wells. The boom was at its height, and the discovery of Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum gave a fresh impetus to the speculation in oil wells.

Of course he had to listen to the story of the great oil strike—over the night, but a few days later, and as a clincher they showed him the government report.

That veterinary had been hurriedly summoned the night, but a few days later, and as a clincher they showed him the government report.

was a lucky find. It's probably the only case of its kind on record.

The night the report came there was a terrible procession in the Duttons. Mr. Potter occupying the post, his horse at its head. The Duttons were brooms dipped in coal oil. The Duttons felt that they could afford to splash it around now that they had the right under their feet.

"After taking Tansie I saw well 108 and am gaining every day. Oh, there is such a wonderful change now. Tansie improved my troubles so quickly it surprised me. My appetite is splendid. I have plenty of strength and feel better than I have in years. I wouldn't take one thousand dollars for what Tansie did for me."

The above statement was made by Mrs. Clara Lehman, Bristol Hotel, Rochester, N.Y.

Tansie is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

The lights failed from lack of oil, about two o'clock; but nobody minded that. They kept up the eating and drinking, and speculating in the dark, and not until the sun was peeping above the eastern horizon did they think of going home.

Celebration? That was a celebration. For the first time in his life Mr. Potter went home smelling of intoxicants. The boys had persuaded that such a peculiarly special and all-aroundly successful occasion, so he moistened of some kind, and had loaded him up with cocktails.

He did not go to bed with his boots on the way a drum man, and he carried anything about the traditions of the village; rather he displayed an exaggerated carelessness in the removing and subsequent disposal of his garments, inasmuch that there was not a particle of furniture in the room but received some part of Mr. Potter's wear and tear.

When he awoke, late in the afternoon, his trousers hung gracefully over the mirror, while two of the bedposts carried a sack apiece.

With a raging headache, and his first thought was of an anger against whoever had taken the liberty of tossing his garments around in that indecent manner. Then he remembered, and hid his head with shame. He expected Mrs. Potter would be scandalized.

A girl she, she didn't let on. She knew he didn't do it on purpose, so what was the use of making a fuss? A wife like that is a comfort to a man.

It takes a while to sink a three-foot well to any depth. By the time the oil had worried that anger ten feet, the oil was in the hole.

Mr. Potter's office of the operation—the company decided that an anger of a smaller calibre would answer the purpose just as well and should give him a chance to where the oil was.

That was the main thing. So a two-foot well was abandoned, and the boring went on again.

Still the company was not satisfied; they changed to a twelve inch bore, abandoned that for an eight-inch, and gave up eight for a six.

Then they considered a six-inch; old Bill's limit, in the way of depth, was a hundred and forty feet, although his contract called for a thousand.

Still the company was not satisfied; they changed to a twelve inch bore, abandoned that for an eight-inch, and gave up eight for a six.

Then they considered a six-inch; old Bill's limit, in the way of depth, was a hundred and forty feet, although his contract called for a thousand.

A hurried meeting of the company was held, and after long and earnest consultation, it was decided to let the oil go ahead, as he decided to do, and make delivery in two instalments of one hundred feet each. The operations were resumed on that basis.

One morning it was noticed that the court had disappeared from the surface of the slough, and Mr. Potter ordered that drilling operations be suspended at once. The disappearance of the court was a serious matter, and Mr. Potter was determined to get it back.

They were drilling at the time in Vol. No. 2. Mr. Potter told a small crew to a string, watching it with rock, and make delivery in two instalments of one hundred feet each. The operations were resumed on that basis.

It came up brimming with water, clear cold water—not the slightest trace of oil in it.

For a while Mr. Potter looked puzzled. Then a great light burst forth upon his countenance. He said:

"Here, this is the most stupendous discovery of our age. It's a discovery that makes the laws of gravitation look pale and weak, and gives the conservation of energy away in the shade. It has remained for Nature to reveal her last and greatest secret—soluble oil."

"You have been taught, and perhaps you have believed, that oil and water don't mix. But now we have the proof that it is not so."

"Look at this can of ostensible water. You see it's a can of oil. There. Not the slightest. Yet it is there in abundance; but so subtly concealed, so perfectly blended, by the agency of Nature, that the most experienced eye can detect it."

Mr. Potter, overcome with emotion, burst into tears. He was weeping for Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum—a title suggested by Mr. Todd, the schoolmaster, in the crowd, gave him a letterhead with the name of Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum.

This discovery gave a fresh impetus to the speculation in oil wells. The boom was at its height, and the discovery of Soluble, Dissolvable and Indissoluble Diffusible of Petroleum gave a fresh impetus to the speculation in oil wells.

Of course he had to listen to the story of the great oil strike—over the night, but a few days later, and as a clincher they showed him the government report.

That veterinary had been hurriedly summoned the night, but a few days later, and as a clincher they showed him the government report.

In Flanders' Fields

In Flanders' fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard above the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow,
In Flanders' fields.

Home Town
Paper Week

It is very rarely that the average newspaper boasts its own business, but it gives great quantities of space in reporting the affairs of others. Somebody suggested that it was time for the newspaper of this country to adopt a week in which their own business should be given precedent, and The Times thoroughly endorses the idea. The date set is the second week in November, from the 7th to the 13th, including that great world event, Armistice Day. The official title for the week will be "Subscriber For Your Home Town Paper Week." Thousands of papers will join in the event, and our readers will hear more about it as time goes on. Ever ready to help of a better community, better living conditions, and better government, we now ask readers and advertisers of The Times to turn in and lend a hand during next week and hand for us.

Election
Optimism

One of the most delightful features of the election fight, now beginning to warm up toward its final heat, is the confidence that all the parties are showing in their own approach in victory. Premier McHugh, after some faint comparisons with the Liberal party, recently estimated from Manitoba to Nova Scotia, that the government will win. Mr. King is quite as sure that it will not, but that the Liberals will be the victors. And Mr. Crean sees certain signs that the next government will be Progressive. Political optimism is a place, and a thing as any other kind of optimism, and it is, of course, a part of the game to have and to show confidence in one's own cause. But the irony of the situation is that not all the hopeful electioneers can have their hopes disappointed. Somebody will be defeated, and there will be just as much first class and abundant optimism disappointed. The fact that this is so makes it the more impossible to attain a great deal of importance to the election forecasts now in circulation. The truth is that no body in Canada can tell what is going to happen on December 6th. For the situation is uncertain and complicated beyond that of any previous election campaign in the nation's history.

Municipalities
Nearly Normal

The Alberta Municipal Finance Commission reports the general position of municipalities in this province to be very satisfactory. Of course, like the other western provinces there was never more than a very small percentage of the body politic ailing and the alarm was out of all proportion to the symptoms. Out of a total of 242 organized municipalities in Alberta the aggregate delinquent arrears total less than $175,000. Athabasca, "Aired and Macleod adjustments are now before the board," comments on the fact that in the case of the first named town, a new issue of debentures bearing interest at five per cent and maturing in 1929, has been arranged for to cover all obligations maturing up to 1929, and an official administrator has been appointed for the town. The finance commission still has houses and Redcliffe under consideration, final action being delayed until they have made up their financial programs for the present year. Vainwright and Wetaskiwin settlements have both been passed by the bondholders and approved by the lieutenant governor in council. The former has no debenture arrears and only its bank in delinquency to provide for. Wetaskiwin's bank debt was $60,000, and its debenture arrears were about the same. The bank account has been arranged on the basis of a ten year extension at six per cent interest, and the debentures will be covered by another issue payable in ten equal annual instalments of combined principal and interest.—Municipal News.

Cutting Out
The Jobber

A convention of representatives of Co-operative Societies or stores, was held recently in Wetaskiwin, the chief object of which was to discuss ways and means of making their own goods, that is of pooling, so to speak, the buying for all the co-operative stores in a given locality, with the idea of eliminating the middlemen, or jobbers. It is likely that this system of buying will eventually be adopted, and we are given to understand that it will have the effect of reducing the wholesale cost to the dealer, and thus lower the price to the consumer. The objection has been advanced that such action on the part of a group of merchants or dealers would put a number of people out of employment, by making their vocations unnecessary, but one traveller remarked the other day that this did not matter to him, as he could easily find something else to do. The same traveller made the point that it cost his "distributing" house 6 1/2 per cent for his salary and expenses in introducing his goods and taking orders for the same. When the office and clerical expenses of the house are also added to this expense of distributing goods to the retailers, it will be seen that it is one or two, or half of one or more of these jobbing houses can be eliminated, and goods purchased by retailers direct from the manufacturer, the same total will represent a great saving to the consumer.

Transportation
Charges

It would seem that freight and passenger charges, just like tariffs and postal rates, may be made so high that the purpose for which they exist, that of raising revenue, is defeated. The Laurier government reduced postage rates from 3 cents to 2 cents in 1919, and the immediate result was the changing of an annual deficit in the postal department to an annual surplus by largely increasing correspondence. Similar action brought similar results in the customs department. It is becoming evident that excessive freight and passenger rates can effectively destroy business. People who begin to use drawing rooms are now beginning to take lower berths; the occupants of lower berths are moving to the tourist cars, and those who once rode tourist have resolved to stay at home. Travelling conditions have become impossible. It is high time that men of vision took hold of the situation with the set determination to get back to normal. There is no emergency and uneasiness in the world today far beyond what needs be. Each and every class of people may as well give up the notion that all other people are prepared to be martyrs for their benefit. All classes and conditions of men may as well co-operate in the sharing of the sacrifices that must be made, and the losses that must be faced. The sooner greed and selfishness are suppressed the sooner will conditions improve for all of us.

Rates Are Up To Stay

After the deliberating and the delay the freight rates are to stay where they are. The argument of the Railway Commission was that the rates should stay up until railway wages come down, materially and permanently. The railways, of course, will rightly insist the high rates help to make conditions such that they cannot stand any severe cut in pay. The net result seems to be that deflation in the price of transportation is stalled, and the business recovery for which everybody is hoping has been correspondingly postponed. All business is directly affected and complicated, and is excessively high, if necessity they have a great influence on all commodities, and the unfortunate part of it is that the public forthwith takes the blame for these prices on the unfortunate retailer. No matter how blameless he may be, the fact remains that he is the one in direct touch with the consuming public makes him the scapegoat for all its views and opinions in the matter of prices. The only satisfactory feature of the finding is that a decision has been made. Better a wrong decision than a prolongation of the delay and uncertainty that was keeping everybody "pending" to see if the rates would come down. Shippers now know at least what freightage is going to cost them for some time to come, and reason for postponing shipments and thus halting the whole trade procession is removed. Those thousands of box cars that have been standing idle on the western tracks waiting until the commission gave its verdict may now get busy hauling out the grain, and hauling in the coal and other merchandise—Commercial winter makes necessary.—Commercial

MICHAEL CLARK GETS
LIBERAL NOMINATION
IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Oct. 23.—Dr. Michael Clark, former member for Red Deer, was the unanimous choice of a Liberal convention for the Mackenzie constituency held at Canora yesterday. Dr. Clark was not at the convention, but intimated to the delegates in a telegram that he would accept if the nomination was made unanimous.

Waste in the Clothing Trade

The American Engineering Council has a very live committee on the elimination of waste in industry, and this committee has been giving its attention to the trade in ready-made clothing. That trade has a yearly output of about $800,000,000, and the committee says that by the institution of certain reforms it can save about 40 per cent, or about $320,000,000. This sounds rather strange to the ears of the common citizen whose only knowledge of clothing is that it is something to wear and that for some unaccountable reason it is remarkably high in price. The committee says that the chief source of waste lies in the seasonal shutdowns which are so great that they account for an average of 9 wasted hours a week, or 48 hours a year, or 32.5 days of 8 hours each. Then 10 hours more can be saved by doing away with energy-wasting and time-wasting shop methods, and two or three hours additional can be saved by cutting out unnecessary work. The committee says there are altogether too many models, and styles, and varieties of cloth. In one case 11 out of 31 sack-model styles went up to 78 1/4 per cent of the sales, in another 9 out of 22 models accounted for 94 per cent of the sales—when the customers neither demand nor appreciate the too-great variety offered. The committee has of course no power to make any changes, but it is well that attention should be called to the waste, and probably some effort will be made to lessen it. And what applies to the clothing trade applies probably to many others; and the high cost of living may be due in no small degree to the high percentage of waste in time, labor, and material.

SWITZERLAND'S DOORS ARE CLOSED TO HAPSBURGS

Geneva, Oct. 23.—Former Emperor Charles and ex-Empress Zita have worn out their welcome in Switzerland. "Never will they be permitted to return to this country," declares President Schulhaus. "And if they return to this country by aeroplane, as they left then, we should arrest, intern and finally expel them. Charles must understand that the doors of Switzerland are definitely closed to him."

"Should the exiles return," continued the Swiss president, "we would give them the chance of four frontiers. If the report is confirmed that Charles and the ex-empress have been arrested in Hungary, let the Hungarians expel them; or they could eventually go to the United States. Of course we shall take care of the children until some other arrangement can be made."

A SEVERE COLD

THE LIKE SIZE
NEVER HAD

Our advice to you is, never neglect what at first appears to be but a slight cold. You think you are strong enough to shake it off, but colds are not so easily fought off in this northern climate, and if they are not attended to at once they may, sooner or later, develop into some more serious lung trouble.

Mr. Edward Kline, 60 Bryden St., St. John, N.B., writes:—"I wish to express my hearty thanks to your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for what you did for me. I had a cold. Last fall I contracted a serious cold, the like I never had. My head and nostrils were so clogged up I could get no rest, and could scarcely get my breath. I tried remedy after remedy until at last I thought I would try 'Dr. Wood's.' After the first dose I felt relief, and by the time the bottle was finished I was better. I wish to extend my thanks to your valuable remedy. After this I will always keep a bottle in the house."

The Unbroken Line

We who have trod the borderlands of death,
Where, courage, high walks hand in hand with fear,
Shall we not hearken where the Spirit
saith,
"All ye were brothers there, be brothers here!"

We who have struggled through the baffling night,
Where men were men and every man divine,
While round us brave hearts perished for the right
By chafed shell-holes stained with life's rich wine.

Let us not lose the exalted love which came
From comradeship with danger and the Joy,
Of strong souls kindled into living flame.

An supreme desire, one high aim play
Let us draw closer in these narrower years,
Before us still the eternal visions spread;

We who outmarched death and all its fears,
Are one great army still, living and dead.

CANADIANS HAVE

A CONSERVATIVE
TASTE FOR FISH

The people of this country are eating more fresh fish than they did last year. Records show that in all parts of the country the ration of fish is being increased. For the first six months of this year there was nearly seventeen per cent more fresh sea food consumed than in the corresponding period of 1920. From January to June close to 22,000,000 pounds were taken from both coasts to interior markets but the volume is still far in excess of more than twenty varieties.

Although more than six hundred species inhabit our waters, of which more than two hundred are edible, many of them extremely palatable and nutritious not more than twenty-five are familiar to the consuming public. With the great portion of the trade is limited to six or seven species.

It is rather strange how taste for fish develops. The United States, for example, will buy all the wonderful Nova Scotia can produce and paid a wholesale price this year as high as twenty-eight cents a pound, yet it is nearly impossible to market the species in Canada. In Great Britain the sole is the delicacy among sea foods. In this country it is very little known and in fact our flat fishes are not so appreciated. The Italian people regard the tenacels of an octopus as a luxury. Canned squid, so prolific in the Atlantic, would appeal to them very much but would it be safe to place it on the tables of Canadian households?

Strathcona Federal Constituency

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Having been honored with the nomination for member of the House of Commons for this Constituency by the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A., and appealing to the electors for support on our official platform, which is the New National Policy, and which Platform we believe and state is in the interests of all the people of Canada, I feel that it is incumbent upon me to give you a summary of my views on some of the planks in the Platform, that you may have some idea of my personal opinion on the issues before us at this time.

Although nominated by the Farmer's Organization and notwithstanding the serious financial condition

I am convinced that it is only by the labor, and honest, earnest endeavor of all classes working sympathetically together that our Country will again be placed on a safe, contented and prosperous basis. While taxation is heavy and will, no doubt, continue to be so on account of our War obligations, the policy of our Platform is to attempt to place a larger share of taxation on the incomes and interests which are best able to bear it, and to enhance the ability of all citizens to pay their fair share of taxation by changing the method which at present puts two or three dollars into the pockets of the protected interests for each dollar that the system puts into the public treasury.

D. W. WARNER

U. F. A. Candidate for Strathcona.

U.F.A. Committee Rooms have been opened at 10122 Whyte Avenue, Phone 31831, Edmonton South, also at Leduc, Wetaskiwin and Ponoka, where a copy of our Platform may be obtained and where our Committee will be pleased to meet all Electors who are interested in supporting our cause.

Official Agent

F. H. Herbert,

they are in at the present time, by reason of excessive freight rates, a high protective tariff, unduly enhancing the price of commodities, we have to buy, and replacing the markets in which we have to sell, with the price of all farm products below the cost of production, we still uphold the motto of "Equal Rights for All and Special Privileges to None," and as their nominee I am pledged to that principle, and do not intend and am not expected to obtain any special privilege for the Agricultural class as against any other class, but will endeavor, if elected, to see that Agriculture, Labor, the Returned Soldiers, and all other classes, receive a square deal. In regard to the Returned Soldiers; being in close touch with the soldiers that have been placed on the land, we can see that this phase of soldier settlement has been far from satisfactory; that the problem of their final satisfactory settlement is still with us and will need special consideration. I am sympathetic to the fair and just demands of Labor, I also believe that a fair and just return should be made on actual Capital in use, for

I believe in the immediate handing over of the Natural Resources to the Province, to be used and developed only in the interests of all the people.

In regard to Transportation: A revaluation of the National Railways down to an actual sound business basis should make possible a material reduction in freight rates and thereby compel the same reduction on all the other railways.

The issues are many and varied and I realize that it is out of the question to go into them in detail in this brief statement, but I hope and expect to meet you and discuss these issues during the campaign, and meanwhile I would urge you to review in your mind the social, economic, and political conditions that exist in Canada today, and consider whether you are satisfied with these conditions. If you are not satisfied I would ask you to consider whether the cause and priorities for which I stand are worthy of your support in an attempt to better these conditions in the interests of all the people.

D. W. WARNER,
U.F.A. Candidate

TWO REMARKABLE GENEVA SPEECHES

Two remarkable speeches were made at Geneva to the Assembly of the League of Nations and by an Australian and a French delegate. They greatly moved the assembly, and Lord Robert Cecil said that the Frenchman's speech alone would have justified the present session of the assembly.

"A hundred men in a hall in Geneva cannot make a new world unless the world is willing to be made anew, but if the spirit of today's debate could permeate the minds of the nations half the problems of humanity would be solved," writes Mr. H. Wilson in the Daily News.

The outstanding feature of the discussion was two speeches, both of them unlooked for from men who know what war is in its actuality means. One of them was an Australian delegate, Captain Bruce, perhaps better known in England as a Cambridge oarsman and rowing coach. Captain Bruce's speech alone would have justified the present session of the assembly.

"If armaments were to be the only security, Australia would arm," said Captain Bruce. "She could do it. During the war she had built up a munitions industry to supply an army of 400,000 men. If need be, she could duplicate that and triple it, if it were not for the fact that she had a whole of her future development and prosperity—development and prosperity of which not only Australia but the world stood in need—would be gone."

"But" continued Captain Bruce (observing quietly: "I am speaking of what I know") "there is something was that scene repeated? Yes, but what I want to tell you here is that it was repeated on both sides of the line.

"I have not seen it with my own eyes, but I have seen it with the eyes of imagination and I know that thousands of young German soldiers said to their Colonel with their dying breath, 'Colonel, say to my mother, 'Vive la Allemagne'."

The audience was profoundly moved, but the speaker had more to say to them, yet. "Why, gentlemen," he challenged them in a passage that will surely have place among the great appeals of oratory. "Why should the splendid and sacred prayer of all these young heroes—heroes I call them, to recognize the worth of an adversary is not to detract from, but to increase one's own—why should that prayer not be answered?"

"Why is it to be impossible that beside a France free and peaceful, a Germany free and peaceful should rise too?"

Gentlemen, that consummation—a consummation of moments—important signs it means the peace and the welfare of a great part of the world are we not here today, to make it possible to bring it about?"

The charge that France was militarist the speaker denounced as the basest of lies. No country wanted more arms, more had suffered more, none had a stronger desire to disarm. It was in that spirit that France would go to Washington.

Scientific (?) Socialism

(BY WILL HOLMES)

Far be it from me to make this article a treatise on socialism. It is rather prompted by a grudge I find in my heart because of the heartlessness that I find in some people who, like myself, are desirous of making the world a better place to live in. The other day a man came to my door and confronted me with the bold statement that I wasn't a Christian. He then proceeded to quote Scripture to prove that himself and a small group and others of his ilk had a corner on Heaven and that unless I and the rest of the world would consent to say that he was right, and believe as he believed, we would all find ourselves in Hell in the year 1925.

That man reminded me of a tactic I have long been familiar with in the field of socialist thought, the doctrinaire school, the fanatics that draw a little circle around themselves and brand everybody outside that circle as enemies of society. For them there is no virtue, no knowledge, no sincerity, no brains outside the rhinoceros faith of what they are pleased to call "Scientific Socialism."

Darwin and Spencer startled the world with their scientific revelations and launched upon us what is known as the "scientific age." That is an age in which people think in terms of science rather than in terms of mysticism, or superstition, or any other system of authority. The new revelation ran riot. It was up to us all to find our cut scientific or to abandon it altogether. It was not dreamt that science had limitations even though the great scientists emphatically declared that it had. People scarcely dared to have emotions when their loved ones died for fear that the emotions were unscientific.

Our doctrinaire Socialist is the survival of this delusion. On his proverbial soap box he glibly rants in this manner: "With governments, constituted authorities, with law and order, with the teaching of schools and colleges, with religion, with morality, we have nothing to do. These are the instruments of the master class keep us, the workers, in subjection, and we are the unrelenting foe of them all. Lodges, trades unions, reform movements, churches, only exist for the purpose of keeping the workers divided." "God is a delusion, Christ is a myth, morality is a misnomer, brotherhood is foolishness, Mind is mechanical, the brain secretes thought just as the liver secretes bile. Love is physical." "We know only our principle of evolution and that is economic determinism—the desire to possess the necessities of life." "This economic determinism is the cause of all laws, religions, organizations, institutions, wars, and everything else."

"We, the working class, have only one business—to use every means at our disposal to possess the earth and every means is legitimate that serves that end."

I asked a number of this doctrinaire school what socialism was and he referred me to Webster's dictionary, for a definition which he agreed was correct. Later I read the dictionary definition, and was challenged by the same man's sister, who said, we socialists refuse to have socialism interpreted by anybody but ourselves, and when I said that my definition was Webster's, she set up a great laugh, exclaiming, "Poor old Webster! who ever told him what socialism was? We claim the right to dispute Webster or any other capitalistic authority." So Webster and Will Holmes are both wrong on the grounds that we are not members of the revolutionary socialist party, and are not contributing to its funds.

Now science is admittedly a legitimate field of human thinking, but it is not without its limitations, you travel in one direction and you become lost in the impenetrable, unfathomable mystery, the unknown. You take an opposite direction, and you run up against the theory, the hypothesis, the perhaps, which after many necessary readjustments, may some day prove to be the real. A third direction takes you to the delusion, it seemed to be, but wasn't, was something entirely different, and still another direction leads to metaphysics, a plain, the existence of which is dogmatically denied by the Scientific (?) Socialist. On these four planes removed from the plain of science, and probably far vaster in extent, experience finds itself grappling with a certain definite force in spite of the materialist in the low grovelling slime of matter. Death is natural, scientific, and to be expected. A materialistic and scientific socialist lost his father and the inconsistency of his feelings with his theories was rather. Love, being sexual, marriage is bondage. Love therefore should be free to express itself where and when sexual affinity occurs. But usually the Scientific Socialist is better than his theory and actually loves his wife and his children, to the extent of fighting any temptation to irregularity. Were I to accuse him otherwise I would charge me with attempting to reduce his character, forgetting his theory that morality is a misnomer. He denounces religion, while his very enthusiasm for what he considers a better state of society constitutes him religious in spite of himself. His loyalty to his cause, his honesty to his convictions, his valour, his courage, his even martyrdom for what he believes, would do credit to any follower of Christ, all of which reveals his refusal to conform to the narrow plain of pure science.

The god of the scientific plain at least should be easy to serve. He leaves no doubt as to his precepts of any laboratory tests. If his worshippers are consistent, we could forgive them much. There is no place on the scientific plain for profanity or obscenity, and yet seldom have we found a materialist but what could relieve himself with a vocabulary that would baffle the theologian or the physician. Biology and physiology have told their story yet our materialistic friend deliberately violates these scientific laws by the use of narcotics and even intoxicants.

The Scientific Socialist declines any credit for any advancement that society has made. His watchword is "The whole lot or none" and he is right, though untrue to every lesson of evolutionary science. The worst evolution is here. We are advancing rapidly toward the socializing of life. We are in the day of the rise of the proletariat to power and satisfactory conditions of life. The so-called scientific socialist is not responsible for one strip of the advancement, and since this is so, he denies its existence. He calls it going backward. What more need we say of him? Will Holmes' next article will be "Patriotism."

STATES RAILWAY STRIKE ORDER IS CALLED OFF

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The rail strike scheduled for October 30 was averted last night, when leaders of the switchmen, trainmen, conductors, engineers and firemen, at a joint meeting, adopted resolutions withdrawing authorization of a walk-out and officials of the railway telegraphers' organization announced they would take similar action. These were the only unions which had authorized a strike.

The vote calling off the strike was unanimous by organizations. W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced, "The official wording of the resolution adopted was that the 'strike be declared not effective.'"

"The vote in the individual unions was usually close, however, the firemen's participants, holding lengthy arguments before agreeing to cancellation of the strike order," the labor officials said. "The vote of the groups the battle was described as 'the closest in history on a similar question.' All of the differences were brought by different sides, however, and the final showdown then casting their ballots for 'no strike.'"

RAINEY GOT 3 YEARS FOR GROSS NEGLECT

Edmonton, Oct. 28.—Edward Rainey and his wife, Isabel Rainey, farmers near Red Deer, are not to be held responsible for the death of their only boy, Edward Wooley, 16 years old, who died from exposure, frostbite, and malnutrition last year after being found in that condition on their farm.

The couple were acquitted here of the charge of manslaughter this week when they appeared before Mr. Justice Tweedie, of Calgary, and a jury. However, Edward Rainey has been held guilty of neglect in not providing the boy with the necessities of life, thus contributing to his death, and he will serve the maximum term of three years in jail for the offense.

The conviction of Rainey is the culmination of what apparently was one of the worst cases of neglect and abuse on record. One day last winter the Collinsons of Red Deer, called to the Rainey farm to attend the boy. He found him in a tent adjoining the house, lying on a cot. His two big eyes were completely shut, and his feet were badly swollen. His body and face were emaciated, and he had terrible bruises on his chest and arms. The arrest of the Rainey couple and they were committed for trial on charges of manslaughter.

Their defense was that the boy had deliberately frozen his feet that he might slip by the fire and avoid the snow. In fact Rainey produced a piece of newspaper that had been signed by the boy which corroborated them from blame. As to the bruises on the boy's body, the Rainey's attributed them to the falls the boy had from fits. "Another explanation was that his frozen feet caused him to fall about. Still another that a horse and dragged him about. Another still that he was thrown over the rail on the tent doorway."

Doctors giving evidence in the case told heart-rending stories of the condition of the boy. One statement said that the boy was found with one of his ears badly torn, his lips badly cut and bruised, the face a mass of sores, both his feet cut and the other very raw, the ends of his fingers raw and a swelling on the back of his head. The whole body was a mass of sores. The doctors declared that falls could not have occasioned the bruises and that the boy could have been saved had medical aid been secured earlier. Dr. DeLong of Red Deer declared that the boy must have been in a state of malnutrition for some months to have reached the stage of emaciation in which he was found.

Mrs. Rainey was first assaulted of the charge of manslaughter, and then took the stand in her husband's defense. She said the boy had very little clothing when the Rainey took him. He always got good meals. It was she who declared that the boy had been dragged by a horse. She said the boy continually refused to be seen by a doctor.

UNUSUALLY PIMPLES MAY BE ERADICATED BY

FOR THE BLOOD

Miss Mary E. Flanagan, R.R. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I suffered about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people."

One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Budek's Blood Bitters and try it. I just took three bottles, and there wasn't a blotch or pimple of any kind left on my face. I feel like a new woman now. I cannot give enough praise and commend it to any person who wants a sure remedy for those nasty pimples and blotches."

MUST ASSIST EACH OTHER

Prosperity of Community Depends Upon Farmers and Merchants
Buying Products and Goods of Each Other.

The first essential in the development of any business is the possession of a market. The manufacturer must have a market for his products or he cannot succeed, no matter how valuable those products may be or how efficiently his plant may be operated.

The wholesale merchant and the retail merchant may have the choicest stocks of goods, but they may as well go out of business if they have not a market where they can dispose of their stocks. The farmer may produce bumper crops, but they will rot upon the ground if he cannot find a market for them. The wage earner and his skill and muscle will bring no returns unless there is a market for his labor.

The merchants of the town can provide a market for the products of the farmers, and the farmers can provide a market for the goods which the merchants have to sell. As long as each class of citizens provides a market to the other class all is well and the going hangs high, but when either class fails to provide a market for the other the class is cooked, not only for the class which is deprived of the market for the other as well.

MILLET

Mrs. MacFarlane will be at the school house from 3 to 7 p.m. on Saturday, November 6th.

This is a busy week for Millet. A convention at Lacombe for a very important program on all the vital phases of missionary, Sunday school, social service and evangelism. It commenced at 2 o'clock on Wednesday continuing until Thursday.

A. J. Haywood, D.A., principal, and teachers Misses V. M. Ingle and M. M. West, are attending the teachers' convention at Leduc this week.

Hallowe'en did not pass without leaving its mark behind. Considerable damage was done as well as uncut practices, thoughtlessly perpetrated. Pun is fun, but when personal property is damaged, then strictness and censure ought to be taken to see that the culprits are brought to face the charges of wanton destruction and interference with the services of the church.

The W.I. are meeting next week at the home of Mrs. Gus Wagner, in the afternoon of November 9. In answer to the roll call, each week-end, kindly remember to give the name of the town or place where you were born and also some incident connected therewith.

A successful social was held on Monday night on Monday night. Particulars will be given regarding the Harvest Services conducted by Rev. I. N. Hargrave.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Mitchell, accompanied by Mr. Mitchell's brother, left on Sunday night last for Saskatoon, to attend the Oriental Bldg. sale, to be conducted by Mr. Mitchell.

Mrs. S. Hillas, electrical contractor, of Edmonton, went this week-end with Rev. and Mrs. L. N. Hargrave. Who said the "Village Doctor" was coming to Millet on Friday evening, November 11, Armistice Day? Why everybody!

The following is a character sketch of the play—"The Village Doctor"—A very bright, self-made young man, a physician, of very limited circumstances, settles down into an small village to build up a lucrative practice. He locates his office in the parlor of a home owned by a very loquacious and ambitious widow, who becomes an influential member of the society of the village. Her home is thrown open for the services of the doctor for personal reasons. The daughter Jane, is a very enterprising and bright young lady, very much the object of criticism and not a little bit of jealousy at first on the part of certain active young society ladies, who have taken a fancy to the widowed doctor.

Many patients beseege Doctor Young—some afflicted with physical and mental diseases, others troubled with sentimental ailments, the latter being the storm centre in which the doctor finds himself. A critical time comes when the Doctor is seriously hurt in a runaway. The much criticized Jane, now a full fledged nurse, rises to the occasion, finds favor with the now successful doctor, who having proved himself worthy of the highest praise and commendation, carries off the honors from his aspiring competitors. The play is replete with humor, and a wholesome variety of entertainment in which the serious, pathetic and merry-making features are blended together. The closing scene furnishes a happy event that brings a climax to the drama, being interspersed with singing and recitation.
